After Bulls game, it's Oprah time

Chicago Tribune

Shortly after the final buzzer sounded in Sunday's NBA playoff game between the Bulls and Miami Heat, about 1,000 workers began transforming the United Center from a basketball arena into a makeshift talk-show studio for the taping of the final episodes of "The Oprah Winfrey Show."

Beginning at 12:01 a.m. Monday, workers were to take down the basketball hoops and install staging equipment, lighting equipment and video monitors until Winfrey begins taping "Surprise Oprah! A Farewell Spectacular" at 7 p.m. Tuesday, according to Don Halcombe, a spokesman for Harpo Productions.

"This is [an] all-hands-on-deck endeavor," Halcombe said.

Eastern Conference Finals games between the Bulls and Heat were scheduled so they would not conflict with Winfrey's taping schedule or with the necessary preparations.

Winfrey's producers have said they plan to spring surprise guests on the Chicago-based daytime talk queen, including "some of the biggest names in music, movies and television."

Free tickets were available through oprah.com starting two weeks ago, and Halcombe expects the United Center to be filled to its capacity of about 20,000 for the taping.

The taping of "The Oprah Winfrey Show" at the United Center will air May 23-24, and the final episode airs May 25.

Is this the end?

Jury still out—way out—on radio host's Judgment Day predictions

Chicago Tribune

Don't mark your calendars yet. Reports that the world will end Saturday are greatly exaggerated, according to many evangelical Christian scholars.

For starters, California radio host Harold Camping, 89, president of the Christian Family Radio Network, hasn't predicted the world will end this spring. He has predicted Jesus will return and believers will rise to heaven. The world won't end until October, he says.

But mainstream biblical scholars say his forecast contradicts Scripture. Jesus told his followers that no one knows the time of his return, they say.

"He's a sincere individual. I just think he's sincerely wrong," said Charlie Dyer, a professor-at-large of Bible at Moody Bible Institute and a Moody Radio host. Dyer devoted Saturday's show, "The Land and the Book," to the prophecy and plans to do the same this coming Saturday—the fateful day, according to Camping.

Dyer said Camping has interpreted the Bible based on numerology, symbolic numbers and his own personal longing.

"He sincerely wants Jesus to return, and I do too," Dyer said. "The problem is Harold Camping wants it so much he's almost using the Bible like a Rorschach test and trying to read his desires into the Bible rather than letting the Bible teach us."

This is not Camping's first apocalyptic forecast. In 1992, he wrote a book titled "1994?" in which he predicted the Rapture would take place Sept. 6, 1994. When that date proved relatively uneventful, Camping blamed a miscalculation.

Given that mistake, Dyer said he didn't anticipate the hype surrounding this prognostication.

This time, events such as the Japanese tsunami and the death of Osama bin Laden seem to have heightened the anxiety.

The billboards, T-shirts and Camping's own RV tour have helped promote the prediction too.

For people left behind after May 21, Camping predicts Oct. 21 will be the final Judgment Day when God destroys the Earth.

Camping couldn't be reached for comment.

MESSAGE ME

Something in social media that has you and your friends talking? An idea for a future column? Please share. If I use it, I'll be sure to give you the credit you deserve right here.

TWEET OF THE WEEK

@clarke692: You should see my dog. He can do tricks. Watch him destroy this $2000 couch.

A picture is worth a thousand meals

I get notes all the time from people who still haven't jumped into social media because they "don't think people need to know what they had for breakfast."

And I always tell them that's not what it's for. But the latest craze, photographing our meals, has me rethinking my responses—at least a little.

Interactive agency 360i recently tried to find patterns in the way people share images of food online with their friends. Two stats stood out to me: First, only 10 percent of the hundreds of photos analyzed included people. Second, only 12 percent of the time was a brand mentioned. That makes sense—the fun part of uploading food photos is the artistic element.

"Foodtography," as the craze has come to be called, is everywhere. And as a foodie, yours truly is first to admit that I'm hooked. Whether I take a photo of a fruit salad at home or of my appetizer in a five-star restaurant, I have no qualms taking out my iPhone, moving the candles around and setting up the perfect shot. I then share it on Instagram, Flickr and Facebook. And, if it's an extra awesome shot, I'll post it to Twitter or use it with my check-in on Foursquare.

I still don't think there's any interest in tweeting out your lunch menu, unless you are eating in some faraway land. But upload a photo with little or no explanation and the tables quickly turn.

Apps such as Instagram have fueled the trend, especially because it's so simple to upload to multiple social sites. And then there's Foodspotting, which is a beautiful website with accompanying iPhone and Android apps that allows you to plot your food sightings on a map. The point is not only to show off your skills and what you're eating, but to help others find "nom-worthy" dishes to eat or photograph.

If you're a foodie, you could literally spend every meal sharing your food photos with like-minded, socially connected people in the U.S. and around the world.

I haven't delved into Foodspotting just yet, simply because I have my hands full with my other social networks. But it's high on my list of things I want to do next. There's something awesome about seeing your dishes being shared around the Internet.

If you want to see some of my best food images, I invite you to take a look at my Instagram food set on Flickr at bit.ly/scottfood.

Do you photograph your meals and share them with your social networks? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. Just not during dinner.

SHIFT CHANGE

Chicagoans sound off on what they expect from city's incoming mayor

Chicago Tribune

It's go time.

The Emanuel era at City Hall begins for real Monday, but the months-long run-up to the swearing-in ceremony has left it abundantly clear that the city's new boss wants the spotlight to remain squarely on him. And so far that spotlight has revealed a leader who plays up his homegrown pedigree but often borrows from the controlled stagecraft and management playbook of Washington, where he has spent the bulk of his public career.

After more than two decades of the often unpredictable Mayor Daley, Emanuel is a study in the kind of caution and focus common to the White House, where he has twice worked. He's mindful not to say or do anything at well-scripted public appearances that might step on his message.

During the mayoral campaign, opponents ripped Emanuel as more a creature of Washington than Chicago, despite representing a Northwest Side district in the U.S. House for three terms. In addition to his work for Obama, Emanuel also served as political director of the Clinton White House.

That resume makes his return to Chicago highly unusual, said Ross Baker, a congressional scholar at Rutgers University in New Jersey.

"Generally speaking, the move is invariably from local to state to federal," Baker said. "It's a well-worn groove in American politics. The arrows point one way."

That said, Emanuel won't be the first former congressman to run City Hall. Harold Washington traveled a similarly unorthodox political path in 1983.

To Emanuel's way of thinking, returning to local politics can only be a plus in his efforts to turn around Chicago and its ailing institutions.

"We are a product of our experiences," he said in an interview. "I hope I'm bringing a wealth of relationships and contacts to bear down on our problems to change the status quo and bring a level of results we haven't seen."

Indeed, change will be the overarching theme of the inaugural address that Emanuel is to deliver Monday, a speech he said was completed three weeks ago. He said the address won't contain new policy initiatives, but rather will explain in broad strokes his intention to shake up a troubled city government.

Emanuel ranks his new job among the top five executive positions in the country. The others that make his list are president, governor of California, and governor of New York and mayor of New York City.

Friends are fond of saying that Emanuel's wiry frame belies a dynamo.

"He's a larger-than-life personality, which I think is a requirement for being mayor of a big city, in particular, this big city. So he's big enough for the job," said President Obama's political guru David Axelrod, who often refers to Emanuel as a "force of nature" and a "heat-seeking missile."

In advance of Emanuel's swearing, the Tribune traveled throughout the city to ask Chicagoans what they expect of him.

WHIRLWIND WEEKEND

Emanuel warms up for mayor's office with concerts, events, service

Chicago Tribune

Rahm Emanuel kicked off his inauguration festivities Saturday with a community cleanup and a free concert in Grant Park, striking a tone of togetherness in Chicago that the mayor-elect hopes will get him past a $600 million budget deficit and other looming problems.

Emanuel will be sworn in as mayor Monday morning in Millennium Park. But there were several events Saturday that he sought to use as symbolic gestures toward how his administration will approach the next four years.

During a slate of volunteer projects around the city that were part of what was dubbed "a day of service," Emanuel couldn't resist the metaphor that a cluster of weeds presented to him at the 65th and Woodlawn Community Garden.

"I look at this and I see corruption," he joked, before bending over to yank the stubborn plants out of the soil while others laughed.

More than 3,000 volunteers took part in the morning events at 30 sites, which included the Chicago River and city parks, according to inauguration organizers.

Emanuel, dressed in jeans and a black fleece coat, was joined by his wife, Amy Rule, and their three children. Also there were city Treasurer Stephanie Neely and Clerk-elect Susana Mendoza, who will take their oaths of office with Emanuel.

From Woodlawn, Emanuel headed to the Fulton Street Community Vegetable and Flower Garden in West Garfield Park, where he helped plant petunias and impatiens.

paign, Emanuel said community gardens and new grocery stores will help residents in so-called food deserts, such as Woodlawn and West Garfield Park, get fresh fruits and vegetables.

He also stressed the importance of cleaning up the Chicago River, saying the city's "backyard" should match the pristine lakefront "front yard" in its recreational activities, restaurants and other tourist attractions.

EVENING AGENDA

A private reception and dinner were held Saturday night at the Venue One event hall on the Near West Side in Emanuel's honor. Many of those attending had donated between $5,000 and $50,000 each to pay for the inauguration events.

As the city prepares to turn a page in its political history, luxury cars disgorged a steady stream of political stars and power brokers.

In Chicago, Rahm Emanuel's inauguration activities included a visit from the band Chicago.

In Grant Park, the free afternoon concert at the Petrillo Music Shell was attended by a crowd of nearly 400 people. Relatively small, they nonetheless cheered for the rock group Chicago, who were joined by performances from the South Shore Drill Team and other local acts.

With low clouds hovering and a sometimes heavy rain blowing in, many in the crowd sat huddled beneath umbrellas.

Yvonne Taylor wore a plastic poncho as she sat with her husband, Larry. The couple had come downtown after helping with the morning volunteer cleanup at the Bubbly Creek section of the river near Archer and Ashland avenues.

"We're really behind Rahm, and we are Chicago fans," said Yvonne Taylor, chilled by the breeze coming off Lake Michigan. "Grew up here my whole life, and I support whatever they're doing."

For Emanuel, the mood was light.

Sounding playful during his brief remarks on the Grant Park stage, the mayor-elect tweaked the members of Chicago for their longevity, noting they were originally known as the Chicago Transit Authority.

"The CTA, when they used to play, it was only 25 cents," he said, laughing.

But he also reiterated that the city is in a difficult situation as he takes office.

"Now remember, we're all having a great time?" he said. "We've got a lot of challenges, with a lot of opportunities to do great things for this city."

Fire officials investigate the scene of Sunday morning's blaze that killed six people in Aurora. NANCY STONE/TRIBUNE

6 killed, several hurt in apartment blaze

3 young boys among fatalities in early-morning Aurora fire

Chicago Tribune

Six people, including three young boys, were killed and at least a dozen others injured when a fire raced through their Aurora apartment building Sunday morning, trapping residents and forcing some to jump from their windows.

"We were just afraid and I had a hard time breathing so I opened the door to my room and smoke started to come in and I just ripped out my window and jumped out with my little son," said Elva Renteria. "I knocked on my parents' window so my parents can jump out."

At least five people were rescued by firefighters from the third floor of the light-colored stucco building at 760 Claim St., according to police and fire officials. Of the dead, there were two women and a man in their 30s and 40s, officials said, and three boys, ages 9, 6 and 8 months.

Four of the six who were killed were part of a family, said a relative who identified them as Francisco Marcos; his wife, Micaela Perez; and their children Jose Francisco and Francisco Jr. A third son, Teodoro, managed to escape, according to the relative.

The Kane County Coroner has not released the names of the dead, an office spokeswoman said.

There were working smoke detectors in the building's common areas, but it was not immediately clear if there were detectors in individual units, fire officials said.

The fire apparently started in a first-floor unit around 4 a.m. and spread through an open door to a common hallway. From there it spread to the second and third floors.

"The hallway acted as a chimney with the fire racing through, trapping victims inside," said Aurora Fire Chief Hal Carlson. "Those on the third floor were very exposed because they opened their door."

Building owner Jose Ayala said he has owned the building since 1993 and was at his home in Wisconsin when police called him at 4:30 a.m. about the fire.

He said the building was last inspected in December and "everything was in order," but city officials said the building's last inspection took place in June. They said no life-safety violations were found at the time.

"I didn't expect this," he said. "These things can happen at any time."

IMF chief accused of rape

7 NEW YORK International Monetary Fund chief Dominique Strauss-Kahn was charged Sunday with trying to rape a New York hotel maid in a scandal that appeared to wreck his hopes of becoming France's next president.

The sexual assault charges throw the IMF into a leadership crisis just as it is trying to help ease an escalating euro zone debt crisis, and they turn France's presidential election campaign upside down when polls had made Strauss-Kahn a clear front-runner.

The charismatic 62-year-old, who led the IMF through the 2007-09 global financial meltdown and has been central in galvanizing Europe to tackle its debt woes, has had the reputation of a womanizer for some time, according to reports. But the charges Strauss-Kahn faces now are in another realm.

A maid, 32, said he emerged naked from the bathroom and sexually assaulted her inside his $3,000-a-night suite at the Sofitel hotel in New York's Times Square on

Strauss-Kahn

Saturday afternoon. He was there on private business, the IMF said.

Strauss-Kahn was expected to go before a state court Monday. His lawyer said he will plead not guilty.

Police say he fled the hotel after the alleged assault and a few hours later they pulled him out of his seat on a plane minutes before it was to take off for Paris.

He was charged with a criminal sexual act, unlawful imprisonment and attempted rape, moving him from a luxurious hotel suite and a glittering public career to scandal and a bare holding cell in Harlem in the space of a few hours.

Water, tensions are rising

8 VICKSBURG, Miss. The temporary walls erected at Vicksburg to hold back floodwaters were under fresh strain Sunday as Mississippi River water levels set new records.

One day after officials opened a floodway downriver to speed the flow through the lower Mississippi Valley and spare two of Louisiana's largest cities, the water at Vicksburg hit 56.48 feet Sunday, more than an inch above the record 56.2 feet set in 1927, according to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The Mississippi, swollen by a rainy spring and melt from an especially snowy winter, continues to rise as it moves south.

BULLS LEAVE NO DOUBT IN GAME 1 DISMANTLING OF MIAMI

RedEye

Good vs. Evil. The Rebels vs. the Empire. The Hatfields vs. the McCoys. Heavyweight vs. Heavyweight. Game 1 of the Bulls-Miami series had been billed as all of the above—and more. At its core, though, the series comes down to Miami's Big Three vs. the Bulls' Big Three. Sure, the Bench Mob and deft coaching moves will play a part too, but Miami's LeBron James, Dwyane Wade and Chris Bosh vs. the Bulls' Derrick Rose, Carlos Boozer and Joakim Noah have the biggest parts to play in this epic showdown. So, whose Big Three got the job done Sunday night at the United Center? Let's go to the RedEye scorecard.

LeBron James leaves the court after Sunday's loss.
SCOTT STRAZZANTE/TRIBUNE

FIRST QUARTER

Wade and James opened the game with back-to-back rafter-scraping dunks, and Bosh had two easy inside buckets to help the Heat start strong. Rose, meanwhile, looked shaky, turning the ball over three times before finally settling down with eight points. Noah and Boozer were limited offensively, although they ruled the glass with nine rebounds between them.

WINNER

Miami 23,
Bulls 20

SECOND QUARTER

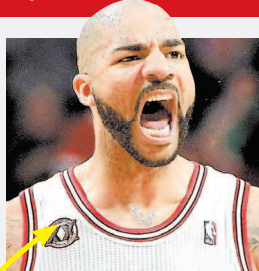

The Bench Mob did its part, giving the Bulls a 30-29 lead after an Omer Asik three-point play, but the starters couldn't keep it up as the Heat bench went on a 7-0 run with the Bulls starters cycling back into the game. The Bulls stopped the bleeding thanks to Rose and Boozer, along with a stellar performance on both ends of the court from Luol Deng. Bosh, however, was the Heat star, with eight points.

WINNER

Bulls 48,
Miami 48

THIRD QUARTER

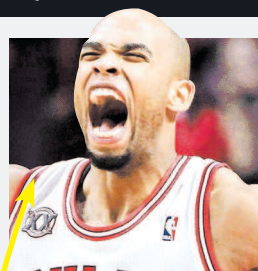

The Bulls charged out of halftime with a Rose 3, a steal by Noah, a pair of Boozer free throws, then a Boozer jumper to grab an early five-point second-half lead. The Heat responded with 10 points from their Big Three before the Bulls reeled off eight unanswered points, six of them on 3-pointers from Rose and Keith Bogans. They closed the third with Noah, Rose and Deng combining for the Bulls' final six points.

WINNER

Bulls 72,
Miami 63

FOURTH QUARTER

After another surge from the Bench Mob to give the Bulls a 17-point lead with eight minutes left, it was up to the Bulls starters to close out Game 1. And they did. With ease. They never let up in the final minutes, long after the game's outcome was not in doubt. It was punctuated by one of the most vicious dunks seen all season at the United Center when Taj Gibson one-handed a C.J. Watson miss on a 3-pointer. Goodbye and good night, Miami.

WINNER

Bulls 103,
Miami 82

HOME, SWEET HOME

For all those who questioned Bulls coach Tom Thibodeau playing his starters down the stretch of the regular season to secure home-court advantage, here's his answer. “Home-court is important,” Thibodeau said. “It's something we worked for. And it's important to play well. Where home-court comes into play is if you get to a Game 7. Then it's somewhat a factor. But in the playoffs, you have to earn everything.” Let's hope this series doesn't come down to a Game 7 though.

1 What's your Miami Hate Index at now?	It's an 11 out of 10 right now, but I'm trying to be a bigger man ...	I already hate the Hurricanes, so let's say 30 out of 10. Like Michael Beasley's number. Remember him, Miami?	After that celebration in Boston, I'm at Stacey King's Hot Sauce Extra Fiery hate right now.	Pretty high, but there's still room for the rage to grow come Wednesday.	A 10 of course! 1 (Bosh) + 3 (Wade) + 6 (LeBron) = 10.
2 How is a Bulls-Heat game at the United Center like a taping of Oprah?	... trying not to get baited into the kind of name-calling that sucks the joy out of sports ...	Other than a few celeb sightings, there will be a crapload of rich suburbanites.	I can't get a ticket to either of them.	Like Oprah's regular guest Dr. Phil, the Bulls' guests are know-nothing blowhards.	Just like Oprah does with her audience, the Bulls will make the Heat cry and send them on vacation.
3 Where does Miami rank on the scale of disliked pro sports teams?	... bite the inside of my cheek whenever I feel it coming on ...	5, after UF, Duke hoops, the Twins and the U. I don't respect the Cubs enough to dislike them.	Just below the "Bad Boy" Detroit Pistons and above the 1986 New York Mets.	Right up there with the hair-pulling Canucks and jort-wearing Cardinals.	After watching the Heat all year, Isiah Thomas and Bill Laimbeer look huggable to me.
4 How might LeBron James spend his two off-days in Chicago?	CRYING IN HIS SPRITE, LIKE AN OVERPAID BUM, DWARFED BY A CITY THAT'S TOO BIG FOR HIM!	Attention, attractive Chicago women! Now is the time to "take one" for the team. DO IT FOR CHICAGO!	Telling the kids at the local Boys & Girls Club how the one in Miami is better.	Standing under The Bean, looking at his own reflection multiplied a hundred times over.	Keeping his mom on lockdown. Delonte West now has a lot of free time.
5 Ohio State hands out a "gold pants" award. What's yours?	The "gold pants" award, also handed out by Ohio State.	Same thing, except for completely different reasons I'd imagine.	The "What's in my Pants" award. (It's golden too.)	The "rolled pants" award, given to every single person alive in the 1980s.	The open-fly Wranglers. Endorsed by Brett Favre. Comes with massage and camera phone too.

Challenging Chad

Ochocinco should try these sports during NFL's lockout

Chad Ochocinco
GETTY IMAGES

It was not the kind of touchdown football fans are used to seeing from Bengals receiver Chad Ochocinco. During intermission Saturday night at a bull-riding competition in Duluth, Ga., the 33-year-old—wearing a caged, protective helmet but otherwise duded out in cowboy gear—hopped onto 6-year-old bull Deja Blu and went for a little ride.

Ochocinco lasted just 1.5 seconds before Deja Blu spiked the NFL player like a game ball and stuck a hoof into him for good measure.

The ride earned him $10,000, but he fell 6.5 seconds short of the time needed to win a new Ford truck and to earn the right to rename the bull after coach Marvin Lewis.

"I'm sure my coach was probably [upset]," Ochocinco said. "I mean, I would be, too. I'm sure the NFL is [upset], but I don't follow their rules anyway."

Indeed. Ochocinco has played Major League Soccer with Sporting Kansas City and now ridden a bull. What other sports could he dabble in during the NFL lockout? Here are a few ideas. REDEYE, TRIBUNE

ROLLER DERBY

Sure he can take a hit on the football field with all those pads. Could he take a hit from a femme fatale on skates with a name like Ruth Enasia or Val Capone? We have our doubts.

BOXING

He's not afraid to put his body on the line, as he proved Saturday night, so why not go all-in? Boxing big guns Manny Pacquiao and Floyd Mayweather Jr. can't seem to agree on a fight, so why don't they both just take on Ochocinco? Not at the same time, of course. That'd just be unfair.

PRO WRESTLING

Some would accuse Ochocinco of being all about the drama considering his prolific use of Twitter and his ability to find himself in headlines for more than his football ability. Some also would accuse pro wrestling a la WWE being all about the drama, as in "scripted." The two were made for each other.

BEWARE OF DOG

Whizzer takes a bite out of sports

@redeyewhizzer

I have a huge "thank you" to send out to the Bulls. Not only because they're representing Chicago pretty well in the NBA playoffs, but also because they've enabled our city to put the terrible White Sox and Cubs out of our minds. So, for the love of God, can you Bulls keep it going into June? Please?

TODAY'S DOGFIGHT
Which Chicago baseball team has a chance to contend in its respective division?

Text "team1" for Cubs or "team2" for White Sox to 87708. You'll get the results instantly.

SCHEDULE THIS

In the midst of the Sox's second of three three-city trips, Ozzie Guillen had some complaints about the baseball schedule. Me too. Like the fact the Sox were included this season.

CUBS ALL WASHED UP

The Cubs, meanwhile, were rained out Sunday. And that's the best news I've heard about them in quite some time.

WILDCATS FEVER

I'm seeing a lot about the Northwestern women's lacrosse team. Congrats to them. But when that's the best team sport your university has to offer, you've got some work to do.

OSU GETS PANTSED

Very sad news out of Ohio. The Buckeyes football team has had to delay the awarding of the "gold pants" charms that are issued when Ohio State beats Michigan. That'll teach them to break the rules ever again.

TREATED

Sergio Santos, you can be my closer anytime.

SPORTS BRIEFS

» Sunday's game between the Cubs and San Francisco Giants was postponed because of inclement weather. The makeup game will be at 1:20 p.m. June 28 as part of a day-night doubleheader. Fans should retain tickets to Sunday's game for that date.

WHITE SOX 4, OAKLAND 3

A victory over Oakland and All-Star pitcher Trevor Cahill gave the White Sox a 6-3 road trip, which wasn't lost on manager Ozzie Guillen. "This game can make it very special or a good one," he said. "This game can be the difference between a good trip and an OK one. But I'll take it."

Easy being green

Greet spring with fresh takes on salad

By Erin Brereton

Feel like it's time to switch from hearty comfort food to something a little crisper? Check out these new salads to launch you through spring into summer.

Watermelon salad

Fogon 1235 W. Grand Ave., 312-421-2000

The sweetness of the watermelon provides "a really good balance" to this salad ($8), according to Leo Garcia, owner of this Mexican spot in West Town. Watercress, feta cheese and red onion are also in the mix, along with tequila vinaigrette.

Poppy tuna salad

Lokal 1904 W. North Ave., 773-904-8113

"When I think [of] summer, dandelion comes to my mind," said Gosia Pieniazek, owner of this Wicker Park restaurant. And so the summer flower's greens made their way into this salad ($10), which also includes poppy seed-crusting tuna and black cherry vinaigrette to balance out the slight bitterness of the greens.

Shaved asparagus salad

Rewster's Cafe 3152 W. Diversey Ave., 773-647-3432

At this Bucktown eatery, raw asparagus spears are shaved with a peeler to create the asparagus salad ($8) served with creamy sherry vinaigrette. "It looks like spring, like a bunch of greens ... exploded in your face," said chef de cuisine Christopher Coan.

Pea tendrill salad

Cafe des Architectes

20 E. Chestnut St., 312-324-4000

Pea tendrils serve as the base of this Gold Coast spot's salad ($12), along with lola rosa lettuce to give it a little tenderness. Served with mint fava toast, it's a fresh take on a caramelized pearl onion and haricots verts salad that executive chef Greg Biggers made for a private party. "It turned out awesome, so we took the idea and turned it into a spring salad," he said. "The pearl onions became the soubise vinaigrette, the haricots verts turned into spring peas, pea tendrils and local beans."

Grilled chicken breast salad

Fork 4600 N. Lincoln Ave., 773-751-1500

This Lincoln Square restaurant changes up its grilled chicken salad with different seasonal ingredients. For the next few weeks, it features shaved fennel, almonds and radishes with shallot-champagne vinaigrette ($13). As summer gets under way, green beans, heirloom tomatoes and peaches will be brought into the mix.

Indian bhelpuri salad

One Six One 1251 W. Taylor St., 312-226-1611

The Little Italy-area eatery's take on a Mumbai street vendor staple is savory and sweet, executive chef Adel Ansari said. With consistency that's "like a trail mix, almost," the salad ($6) is made using rice crisps, corn puffs, onions and tomatoes, plus a tamarind and cilantro mint drizzle. "Tamarind lends that tangy edge; mint [and] cilantro are very fresh and really adds to the crunchiness and flavor palate of the dish," Ansari said. "It's the savory equivalent of eating gelato in summer."

Carrot salad with fig conserva

The Purple Pig

500 N. Michigan Ave., 312-464-1744

Known just as much for its tasty veggie dishes as its swine, this Mag Mile eatery eschews salad's leafy stereotype and combines blanched multicolored baby heirloom carrots with fig conserva, raisins, shaved fennel, roasted pine nuts and a citrus vinaigrette ($10).

Bufala mozzarella salad

Ceres' Table

4882 N. Clark St., 773-878-4882

"Tomatoes and mozzarella are always two of the major ingredients in Italian cooking," said Giuseppe Scurato, chef at this Ravenswood Italian restaurant. And so this traditional salad ($10) pairs mozzarella imported from Italy with locally grown heirloom tomatoes and roasted bell peppers, plus shaved red onions and sourdough croutons.

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Taurus

April 20-May 20

You're having troubles as the sun adds melodrama to your relationship. Your boyfriend is acting hot and cold. Your girlfriend is being reckless and strange. The plot thickens.

Gemini May 21-June 21

As the sun enters your sign, you'll feel more confident than you have in ages. Forget those mean girls or bullying football players from high school. You're fabulous, and you'll continue to ooze charisma.

Cancer June 22-July 22

You need to get away from it all. Your romantic situation is nuts right now, and you could use some personal distance.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

Don't freak out if you experience a sexual glitch. You thought you were ready to give your lover a dozen orgasms, but suddenly, all you want to do is take a nap. Blame a moon opposition for your lack of sensual motivation.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Venus has you getting down to business. You'll ask your boyfriend if he wants to move in, and if he avoids answering, you'll move on to another guy. Or you'll tell your girlfriend that it's time for her to decide between her college sweetheart and you.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You'll dance until you drop as a feisty sun gives you extra energy. You're ready to have fun and to lure others within your circle of cool.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

An emotional full moon is turning you into a blubbering fool. You'll drunk dial your ex and beg for him to take you back. You'll write frantic love letters to your on-again, off-again boyfriend.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You need to get more inventive in the bedroom. You're good at what you do—there's no doubt about that. But consider expanding your sexual repertoire. Uranus is encouraging you to be creative and innovative.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Someone could surprise you with his or her ardor as Venus stirs up the intensity. Perhaps you'll find out that a gorgeous waitress at your favorite restaurant longs for you.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You might reach out to someone who is "bad news," refusing to consider the consequences. You're determined to hook up with that crazy ex or make trouble with someone who almost always drives you nuts. The moon says don't be too hasty.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

An expansive sun is encouraging you to keep your options open. Don't stick to just one romantic program. Even if you thought you should be married with 10 kids, you could discover that your best path is to be single with a golden retriever.

Aries March 21-April 19

Your lover wants to try new things, but you're threatened about making changes. The moon says don't ignore your partner's wishes.

'Secret' admirer

It's not just you—sexy lingerie model Marisa Miller likes Derrick Rose, too

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

Simon Cowell and his fellow judges will be on hand when "The X Factor" returns to Sears Centre Arena in Hoffman Estates on Thursday and Friday for another round of auditions, but Marisa Miller, once rumored to be in talks to host Fox's new musical competition, will not.

The Victoria's Secret Angel said she was contacted about a possible hosting role—which eventually went to former Pussycat Dolls singer Nicole Scherzinger and U.K. personality Steve Jones—but passed on the opportunity.

"I was very flattered that they called me up and wanted me to have a meeting with them," Miller said Friday while sitting in a booth at Public House, where she hosted a birthday celebration for Captain Morgan. "To have the opportunities I do is amazing. I'm being very selective about what I do because I know the first thing I do needs to be important. ... I need to have a real passion for it."

Why didn't Miller feel "X Factor" was right for her?

"I can't talk about why, but I have other things I'm pursuing right now," said Miller, who apologized for not being able to elaborate.

The 32-year-old supermodel was, however, more than willing to talk about her favorite basketball player, Derrick Rose.

Miller met the Bulls star at the Berto Center in 2009 while promoting Victoria's Secret's "What's Sexy Now Chicago" campaign. Rose was nominated for the sexiest athlete award, which he later won, and was given a Bulls jersey by Miller with "Sexy" on the back.

"It was really funny because he was obviously embarrassed by all of it," Miller said. "I love his humility. When you're that good, you don't have to talk. I think it's really refreshing to see someone like him get the MVP award and be very humble. He was injured at the time, but I still got to play him one-on-one. I made a layup, so I have bragging rights."

SUMMER ABROAD

The "Jersey Shore" cast has landed in Italy and is concerned about two things: language and carbs. "I need to know how to order grilled chicken when I get down there," Ronnie Magro told People, adding that he ordered language software to help. Snooki agreed, saying, "I'm very, very scared because I'm trying to lose weight. So going to Italy and drinking wine and having spaghetti all day—it throws me off course."

'White' hot

Watch out for poisoned apples. Chris Hemsworth will play the huntsman opposite Kristen Stewart in "Snow White and the Huntsman," with Charlize Theron as the evil queen, slashfilm.com reports. The flick will follow the title characters as the huntsman teaches Snow White how to survive in the wilderness—something we're sure Hemsworth learned all about for "Thor."

The 'Pam' clan

Jenna Fischer has a baby on the way. It will be a first for the pregnant "Office" star (who plays new mom Pam on the NBC comedy) and her husband, Lee Kirk. No word yet if the actress is planning to take some maternity leave from the hit show.

THE DIGIT

$34.5 MILLION

That's how much "Thor" earned at movie theaters over the weekend, hammering the competition and nailing down No. 1 at the box office for a second straight week.

"[Ashton] Kutcher is a sweetheart and a brilliant comedic performer. ... Oh wait, so am I!"

—Charlie Sheen to TMZ, sort of complimenting Kutcher on his role as Sheen's replacement on "Two and a Half Men"
